SMALL DOSES

Chile has freed her interned Germans held since 1915.

Fifty New York policemen own motor cars.

Since Nov. 11, 3,165,643 soldiers have been discharged and 96,126 enlisted.

Dunk Botts, of the Hogswallow Kentuckian, has made good to the extent that imitators of his style of humor are in the field.

The Prince of Wales is headed this way with a cruiser going ahead of his ship, to lookout for icebergs. He will land at St. Johns.

Evansville has "municipal swimming holes" for both boys and girls, with instructors paid to teach them to swim.

All Tokio papers have suspended on account of a strike. Japan is indeed becoming more and more like America.

Ten New York theatres were "dark" Saturday night on account of an actors' strike. But people can do without theatres.

A Frenchman has made a new altitude record of nearly 6½ miles. If the aviators keep on making new records, they will soon get as high as breakfast bacon.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is running for the legislature in New York. He started his speech-making by abusing Democrats and "Grows more like his dad every day."

English papers are asking that the terms Hun and Boche, applied during the war, are regarded as epithets and should not be used in time of peace. All the same, they are liable to stick for a few generations.

A Greek at Fort Wayne, Ind., answers to the name of Polybius Pappathodoroumountogotopolous. It is the longest name in any directory in the United States. He has cut it down to Anaspos but they call him Pap Pap for short.

The Bolsheviks are said to be running out of ammunition and will soon be easy marks for the all-Russian government forces. In all probability after running out of ammunition they will run out of their uniforms.

Since mail service has been resumed with Germany mail five years old is being forwarded and the mails are being burdened with parcel post packages containing all sorts of meats, lard, butter and fats, sent by Teutons in this country to relatives in Germany.

Holland is preparing to deport 7,000 deserters and military refugees who escaped from Germany during the war, but nothing is said about sending the Hohenzollerns home to the location selected for them by Marse Henri Watterson.

Andrew Carnegie was one rich man who used his wealth to make the world happier and better. From 63 to 83, his entire life was devoted to benevolence and the longer the Lord let him live the more his benefactions increased.

Seven members of the Ohio Farmers' Co-operative Milk Company were released on $2,000 bond each in Common Pleas Court at Cleveland, following their arrest and detention in the county jail on indictments returned by a special grand jury charging violation of the Valentine antitrust law. Trial was set for Sept. 8.

Sixty to eighty soldiers were killed and 200 wounded in the fighting during food riots Friday, according to private estimates at Chemnitz. Ten civilians were killed and fifty wounded. The city is now quiet and trains are running. Chemnitz is the town where Lieut. Long, of the Kentuckian, was stationed until he started home August 1st.

Strikes are now prevailing in America, Britain, Italy, Japan, Germany and other smaller countries too numerous to mention. The public no longer looks upon strikes with patience and every new one ordered arts the caused of organized labor? individuals may have to suffer, but government can afford to have its interests controlled by strikers. No good citizen will strike against his government. In war it is treason, in peace it is a crime.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR REUNION

REUNION OF FERRELL'S BOYS

WILL BEGIN TOMORROW
--GOOD ATTENDANCE

BARBECUE AT LAKE FRIDAY

Fair Weather Is All That Is Needed To Make the Gathering a Big Success.

FIRST MEETING SINCE AUG. 1916

Everything is in ship shape and apple pie order for the Third Reunion of the Ferrell's Boys tomorrow and Friday.

Of the 625 boys who were taught by Maj. J. O. Ferrell from 1873 to 1903, about two-thirds are still living. Of the 450 survivors more than 100 are expected to be on hand. They are scattered far and wide, but the United States" came in off the front. About 70 formal acceptances have been received and many of the local boys have not thought it worth while to report. It goes without saying that they will not miss it.

One sad feature came yesterday in the report that Jake Cohn, of Lawrence, Kansas, was sick and could not come. John T. Evans, of Guthrie, and Ed B. Lindsay, of Elkhorn, two of the old stand-bys, are also reported unable to attend on account of illness.

The "early birds" began to arrive the first of the week.

Wallace Kelly blew in from New Orleans and is with his parents.

Jim Wootton, from "Somewhere in the United States" came in off the road, having talked his house out of a vacation and reported ready to help."

Fletcher Campbell arrived yesterday having got himself "assigned to duty in Hopkinsville," looking after insurance business this week.

Chas. G. McDaniel writes from Louisville, "When the roll is called that they would be on hand.

C. T. Edmundson, of Nortonville, and W. S. Pierce and H. H. Golay, of the county, reported yesterday that they would be on hand.

Geo. W. Metcalfe wrote from Louisville that he was headed this way and would bring Mrs. Metcalfe with him. She is acting wisely in keeping an eye on him.

Charlie Prowse, of New York sends this eloquent reminder:

New York, Aug. 16, 1919.

My dear "Boys":

The invitation from the "Home Gang" bringing one of the tenderest memories of life—that of boyhood schooldays, received; and with deepest regrets beg to advise my inability to be with you in person.

The "Home Gang" as well as those of the "Ferrell Boys," that are scattered and dreaming, as I am dreaming of the "olden days of boyhood," may rest assured that my thoughts and love will be with you and them in this annual gathering. The spirit will be there to mix and mingle—recalling former meetings—doings of boyhood days—sweethearts of old—trials and tribulations of schooldays and lastly the departure of those that have answered the last roll call.

I shall read of your meetings, your greetings and your farewells, for I know that the papers' representatives will be on the job, from the arrival of the first "boy" until the distant hum of the train carrying the last one of them to their new found homes—and even then, echoes of the reunion will be heard.

It is hard to realize the real meaning of a meeting of the "Ferrell Boys" until one, drifting away and settling among strangers in a strange land, tho' under the same flag—receives an invitation to gather again on the home ground—then an indescribable something that takes hold and grips the heart strings—as one dreams of the days gone by—those happy, care-free days of boyhood. Gone forever, returning only in dreamland.

In dreamland you live again—thinking of the boys who were with you—back yonder, in the beautiful long ago—in its every sense.

Not meaning to take any of the beauty and love from life as it is today, yet

RUSSIA'S WAY OF HANDLING HER STRIKES

LABOR UNREST INCREASES AND PEASANTS REFUSE TO DE-LIVER GRAIN

THE POLES BEGIN OFFENSIVE

Premier Lenin Is Hunting An Opportunity to Make a Safe Exit.

Copenhagen, Aug. 12.—Premier Lenin, it is rumored intends to retire from the head of the Bolshevik government, according to dispatches from Helsingfors quoting Russian reports.

Strikes are reported to be raging everywhere in Bolshevik controlled territory. One hundred and fifty strike leaders are said to have been executed.

A Russian government official statement on operations in the region of Minsk, received by wireless, says:

"Our army on the eastern front took 8,000 prisoners in July.

"Sixteen members of the Tomsk committee of the Bolshevik party have been arrested and shot."

BELOVED LADY PASSES AWAY

Miss Mary Collins Dies At Home of Her Neice at Age of 83.

Miss Mary Collins passed away early Saturday morning at the home of her niece, Mrs. Fannie Cheatham on South Virginia St. Miss Collins fell something over a year ago and was seriously injured. She had been confined to her bed ever since and gradually grew weaker. Her death was not unexpected.

Miss Collins was born in Montgomery county, Tennessee, 83 years ago. She joined the Methodist church in early childhood and had been a faithful member through her whole life. She was a lady of pleasing and attractive disposition, with a kind word and a smile for everyone. She was well informed and enjoyed nothing so much as to discuss the current issues. On account of her well founded views and her comforting smile, she was much sought after and had a host of friends who mourn her loss.

She is survived by one niece, Mrs. Cheatham, one nephew, Nick Edwards and one sister, Mrs. Martha McCulloch Williams. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 and interment was in Riverside cemetery.

recalling the happy days of yore—when Bill, Frank, Tom or George and you, in the enthusiasm of exploring some secluded spot in the wild woods along the bank of a little stream with the squirrels, birds and other wild life scampering away at your approach—you follow again the trail—into the unknown. In your boyhood fancy you found real life in its beautiful wonderful sincerity.

And now as memory's eye, flashing across the mirror of your dreams, reveals to you the days of long, long ago—of boyhood fancies, faces of schoolmates dear—I know that a cry of delight falls from your lips and heart strings tingle with happy memory almost forgotten.

Let us Boys,—Schoolmates, if you prefer, pledge ourselves again to keep forever green the memory of the "Schoolmaster" and "School Boys" of the long, long ago—and in making this pledge let me urge a quiet hour in which you let your memory work its miracle in bringing up the dim dead long ago. Wrap yourself with memories of boyhood—and your love of manhood will grow and strengthen.

May God's richest blessings rest with the living and tenderest mercy abide with those who have gone before.

Trusting I may be with you some other time, I am,

One of the Boys,

C. O. PROWSE.

BANDITS LOOT A KY. BANK; SHOOT OFFICER

GET $7,000 IN SOUTH CARROLLTON; ONE MAN CAPTURED.

ED AFTER CHASE

FLIVVER FAILS TO HELP THEM

One Suspect Captured and Posse are Hot On the Trail of the Others.

Central City, Ky., Aug. 12.—While most of the population of South Carrollton was attending a circus this afternoon three men, poorly disguised as negroes, entered the Citizens' Bank of South Carrollton, held up the employees and obtained $7,000 and $20,000 in Liberty Bonds.

John Wells, 20 years old, was captured on Green River after a chase by several hundred men and after Mack Ashby, a policeman, was shot in the leg by one of the robbers.

Sheriff Arthur Lile took Wells to Greenville, where he was lodged in jail. Wells refuses to talk about the robbery.

Arrests of others is expected at any minute.

A posse of several hundred men is scouring the Green River bottoms for the men.

The bandits entered the bank when no one was present except Paul Whitman and Irvin Barnes, assistant cashiers.

Calling "hands up!" the robbers produced revolvers to enforce the demand.

.. The bank employees were then covered by two robbers while the third procured cash from the safe. After obtaining the loot the robbers attempted to lock the employees in the vault, but failed because they could not work the combination.

A passerby gave the alarm and the robbers fled. Ashby pursued them and they fired on him inflicting a slight wound in the leg. The bandits jumped into a car that had been stolen from Bud Alfin last night, and attempted to make their escape. The car failed to operate and was abandoned.

The robbers jumped out and fled to the Green River bottoms.

GROCERIES FROM POST MASTER

War Supplies Are Now Being Retailled By the Government and Sent By Mail.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The War Department has made public a complete price list on all subsistence stores available for sale to the public through the parcels post or thru municipal selling agencies. Costs of the commodities to the Government, the department said, had been disregarded entirely in fixing the prices of sale, which are materially lower than the prevailing market rates.

The prices quoted are f. o. b. and from storage points in each of the thirteen districts into which the country is divided for war department subsistence purposes.

Although 72 food staples are enumerated in the price list, the itemized quotations owing to the variety of packing, are quite lengthy. Quotations on some of the leading commodities are:

Bacon $4.15 per can of 17 pounds; corned beef, 55 cents for can of 1.36 pounds; baked beans, 5 cent per can of 1 1/4 pounds; sweet corn, 10 cents per 2 1/4 pound can; dry beans, $6.40 per 100 pounds; crackers 6 and 6 cents a pound; army flour, $6 per 100 pounds; macaroni, 7 cents per 1 1/2 pounds; rolled oats, 12 cents per two pounds; seeded raisins, 10 cents per pound; rice, $6.47 per hundred pounds; tomatoes, 9 cents per two-pound can, and white corn meal, $3.50 per hundred pounds.

Bread in Petrograd costs $60 a pound.

MANY SHOPS TO RESUME OPERATION

ALMOST NORMAL CONDITIONS PREVAIL, ACCORDING TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON

HINES IS NOW READY TO ACT

Will Take Up Demands As Soon As Men Need President and Return to Work.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Developments over the week-end expected to result in almost normal conditions in every railroad shop where men have been on a strike.

Director-General Hines is ready to undertake negotiations on wage demands as directed by President Wilson as soon as the men return to work. In view of President Wilson's specific instructions that the whole matter would have to be "at a standstill" so long as an illegal strike continued, the demand of men in some places for wage increases before going back to the job, it was learned, cannot alter the situation. Union officials here are in touch with the strike centers.

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 12.—In his great mansion overlooking a lake in the beautiful Berkshire hills, where he sought seclusion when bodily infirmity overtook him and his mind was saddened by the entrance of his country into the world war, Andrew Carnegie, iron master and philanthropist, died Monday.

Although he had been in feeble health for more than two years, his final illness was brief—a matter of days. A severe cold developed quickly into bronchial pneumonia, the aged patient lapsed into unconsciousness and the end came as though it were the beginning of a deeper sleep.

No ostentation will mark the funeral of the man, who when he began 18 years ago to give away his millions, was reputed to have the second largest fortune in America. A simple service, attended only by members of his own family and his household, will be held at the home, Shadow Brook, tomorrow or Wednesday.

The time has not been determined. It is expected the body will be sent to Pittsburgh, the city where he laid the foundation of his wealth, for burial.

Mrs. Carnegie was at her husband's bedside in the last hours of his life but he did not revive sufficiently to permit any sign of recognition. Their daughter, Margaret, who last April married Ensign Boswell Miller of New York, was notified that it was apparent that the illness would be fatal, and she hurried from her home at Millbrook, N. Y., arriving a few minutes after her father had died.

The widow of the laird of Skibo, although overcome with grief at the comparatively sudden death of her husband, bore the shock bravely.

A mass of telegraph and telephone messages of condolences from persons of prominence all over the country had accumulated at Shadow Brook.

When Mr. Carnegie returned to his summer home last Spring it was evident to his intimates that the once great industrial leader was a broken man and that any slight indisposition might have a fatal end. However the air of the Berkshires and the seclusion afforded him in his beautiful estate appeared to benefit him and he exhibited occasional flashes of the old exuberance that had made him a cheerful comrade for so many years.

Mr. Carnegie proved an easy prey to a cold contracted last Thursday and after a futile attempt to shake it off, he took to his bed the following day.

The marriage of Mr. Carnegie's only daughter, Margaret, on April 23, to Ensign Roswell Miller, U. S. N., was the last social affair that the aged philanthropist and peace advocate attended. The ceremony was performed at Mr. Carnegie's town house, the bride standing in a floral bower with Scotch bag pipes playing in accordance with her father's wish.

The bridegroom, son of a former president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, who died in 1913 had not completed his college course when war was declared. In 1916 he left Stevens Institute in Hoboken where he was taking a course in civil engineering, to drive an am-

George Birmingham, of Hogwallow Kentuckian fame, was nominated for City Councilman in Mayfield.

Candidate Ed Morrow addressed a Bible class at a Louisville church yesterday on the "Glad Hand." The last time he was in Hopkinsville he did not address a Bible class.

Prof. Ernest H. Haekel, professor of zoology in the University of Jena, and one of German's most eminent scientists, died Saturday at an advanced age.

If Morrow could not win over a divided Democracy in 1915, he will never know what hit him in 1919. The Democrats are united on Governor Black, who will take votes from Morrow in every mountain county.

If Ed Morrow's friends start any mud-slinging in this campaign, some very interesting contributions to the campaign may be expected from the Democratic side of the house. All sorts of things happen in politics.

The Daviess County Baptist Association of 47 churches, accepted the apportionment of $700,000 for the $75,000,000 campaign and pledged the money. Bethel's apportionment is $450,000 and the Association meets at Guthrie Sept. 30.

William Nathaniel Harben, author and associate editor of Youths' Companion, is dead at his home after a brief illness. Mr. Harben, who was born in Dalton, Ga., in 1858, is survived by his widow and two children.

The news index column on the front page of the Courier-Journal which has been growing shorter from day to day, disappeared entirely in Sunday's issue. It was with the reading public the most popular column in the paper and many busy men read that and threw the paper down.

Camden, N. J. authorities bought two tons of army hams and one of bacon, and quickly sold them at public sale at 32 cents for hams and 30 cents for bacon, from 8 to 19 cents under the store prices in the same town. They were handled on a margin of two cents a pound profit.

Plans to erect war memorials in the form of buildings to be used as social centers have been decided on by 236 cities, towns and villages in the United States, according to figures made public today by War Camp Community Service. The organization is carrying on a country-wide campaign for community memorials thru its bureau of memorial buildings.

The first German war brides to come to the United States since 1917 arrived at New York Friday aboard the army transport Great Northern from Brest. They were included among 249 young women of various nationalities who married American sailors. The great Northern also brought twenty-two officers, 1,500 troops and eighty-three welfare workers.

All Sailors Superstitious.

All sailors are superstitious, but none is so completely under this influence as the old deep-sea fisherman. He puts the deepest faith in "signs" and omens of all kinds. Nothing would induce a skipper of the old school to sail on a Friday. One intrepid unbending who dared to leave the docks at Grimsby, England, on a Good Friday was hooted through the lock gates by the scandalized populace. In spite of thus challenging the fates, however, he returned safely with ship and crew.

Discipline.

Know you not that our business here is a warfare, and one must watch, and one go out as a spy, and one must fight? You neglect to do the bidding of the commander, and complain when he hath laid somewhat rougher than common upon you, and you mark not what, so far as in your lies, you are making the army to become, so that if all copy you, zone will dig a trench none will cast up a rampart, none will watch, none will run any risk, but each will appear worthless for warfare.—Epictetus.

Says Hixson Lady Who, On Doctor's Advice, Took Cardui And Is Now Well.

Hixson, Tenn.—"About 10 years ago I was..." says Mrs. J. B. Gadd, of this place. "I suffered with a pain in my left side, could not sleep at night with this pain, always in the left side..."

My doctor told me to use Cardui. I took one bottle, which helped me and after my baby came, I was stronger and better, but the pain was still there.

I at first let it go, but began to get weak and in a run-down condition, so I decided to try some more Cardui, which I did.

This last Cardui which I took made me much better, in fact, cured me. It has been a number of years, still I have no return of this trouble.

I feel it was Cardui that cured me, and I recommend it as a splendid female tonic."

Don't allow yourself to become weak and run-down from womanly troubles. Take Cardui. It should surely help you, as it has so many thousands of other women in the past 40 years. Headache, backache, sideache, nervousness, sleeplessness, tired-out feeling, are all signs of womanly trouble. Other women get relief by taking Cardui. Why not? All druggists

The Magnificent Ambersons

BOOTH TARKINGTON

COPYRIGHT BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. Major Amberson had made a fortune in 1873 when other people were losing fortunes, and the magnificence of the Ambersons was then at its height. Amberson laid out a 20-acre "development" with roads and statuary, and in the centre of a four-acre tract, on Amberson avenue, built for himself the most magnificent mansion in the Midland City had ever seen.

CHAPTER II. When the major's daughter married young Wilbur Minafer his neighbors predicted that as Isabel could never really love Wilbur all her love would be bestowed upon the children. There was only one child, however. George Amberson, Minafer's son, up-bringing and all youthful accomplishments as a mischief maker were quite in keeping with the most pessimistic tradition.

CHAPTER III. By the time George went away to college he did not attempt to conceal his belief that the Ambersons were about the most important family in the world. At a ball given in his honor while he was there, he met a girl who monopolized Lucy Morgan, a stranger and the prettiest girl present, and got on famously with her until he learned that a "queer looking duck" at whom he had been poking much fun, was the young Miss Eugene Morgan, a resident of Elbridge, and returning there to erect a factory, to build horseless carriages of his own invention.

CHAPTER IV. Eugene was an old admirer of Isabel's and they had been engaged when Isabel threw him over because of some youthful indiscretion and married Wilbur Minafer.

CHAPTER V. George makes rapid progress in his courtship of Lucy.

CHAPTER VI. While driving with Lucy, next day, George allows the horses to get beyond control, and the animal overturns the cutter, splitting George and Lucy in the snow, unbruised, although George is greatly annoyed.

CHAPTER VII. George reveals intense dislike of Morgan, whom he suspects of financial designs on his uncle or grandfather. His aunt, Fanny Minafer, to his great astonishment, sharply rebukes him.

CHAPTER VIII.

A few days after George's return to the university it became evident that not quite everybody had gazed with complete benevolence upon the various young collegians at their holiday sports. The Sunday edition of the principal morning paper even expressed some bitterness under the heading, "Gilded Youths of the Flin-de-Siecle"—this was considered the knowing phrase of the time, especially for Sunday supplements—and there is no doubt that from certain references in this bit of writing some people drew the conclusion that Mr. George Amberson Minafer had not yet got his come-upance, a postponement still irritating. Undeniably Fanny Minafer was one of the people who drew this conclusion, for she cut the article out and inclosed it in a letter to her nephew, having written on the border of the clipping, "I wonder whom it can mean!"

George read part of it:

We debate sometimes what is to be the future of this nation when we think that in a few years public affairs may be in the hands of the flin-de-siecle gilded youths we see about us during the Christmas holidays. Such folly, such luxury, such insolence was surely never practised by the sated, overbearing pairclans of the Palatine, even in Rome's most decadent epoch. With his airs of young miflord, his fast horses, his gold and silver cigarette cases, his clothes from a New York tailor, his recklessness of money showered upon him by indulgent mothers or doting grandfathers, he respects nothing and nobody. He is biased, if you please. Watch him at a social function, how condescendingly he deigns to select a partner for the popular waltz or two-step; how carelessly he shoulders older people out of his way, with what a blank stare he returns the salutations of some old acquaintance whom he may choose in his royal whim to forget!

One wonders what has come over the new generation. Of such as these the republic was not made. When we compare the young manhood of Abraham Lincoln with the specimens we are now producing we see too well that it bodes ill for the twentieth century—

George yawned and tossed the clipping into his waste basket, wondering why his aunt thought such dull nonsense worth the sending. As for her insinuation, penciled upon the border, he supposed she meant to joke—a supposition which neither surprised him nor altered his lifelong opinion of her wit.

He read her letter with more interest:

The dinner your mother gave for the Morgans was a lovely affair. It was last Monday evening, just ten days after you left. It was appropriate that your mother, herself an old friend, should assemble a representative selection of Mr. Morgan's old friends around him at such a time. He was in great spirits and most interesting.

He will soon begin to build his factory here for the manufacture of automobiles, which he says is a term he prefers to "horseless carriages." Your Uncle George told me he would like to invest in this factory, as George thinks there is a future for automobiles; perhaps not for general use, but as an interesting novelty, which people with sufficient means would like to own for their amusement and the sake of variety. However, he said Mr. Morgan laughingly declined his offer, as Mr. M. was fully able to finance this venture, though not starting in a very large way. Your uncle said other people are manufacturing automobiles in different parts of the country with success. Your father is not very well, though he is not actually ill, and the doctor tells him he ought not to be so much at his office, as the long years of application indoors with no exercise are beginning to affect him unfavorably, but I believe your father would die if he had to give up his work, which is all that has ever interested him outside of his family. I never could understand it. Mr. Morgan took your mother and me with Lucy to see

Jessie in "Twelfth Night" yesterday evening, and Lucy said she thought the duke looked rather like you, only much more democratic in his manner. Hoping that you are finding college still as attractive as ever,

Affectionately,

AUNT FANNY.

George read one sentence in this letter several times. Then he dropped the missive in his waste basket to join the clipping, and strolled down the corridor of his dormitory to borrow a copy of "Twelfth Night." Having secured one he returned to his study and refreshed his memory of the play—but received no enlightenment that enabled him to comprehend Lucy's strange remark. However, he found himself impelled in the direction of correspondence, and presently wrote a letter—not a reply to his Aunt Fanny.

Dear Lucy: No doubt you will be surprised at hearing from me so soon again, especially as this makes two in answer to the one received from you since getting back to the old place. I hear you have been making comments about me at the theater, that some actor is more democratic in his manners than I am, I do not understand. You know my theory of life because I explained it to you on our first drive together, when I told you I would not talk to everybody about things I feel like the way I spoke to you of my theory of life. I believe those who are able should have a true theory of life, and I developed my theory of life long ago.

Well, here I sit smoking my faithful briar pipe, indulging in the fragrance of my tobacco as I look out on the campus from my many-paneled window, and things are different with me from the way they were way back in freshman year. I can see now how boyish in many ways I was then. I believe what has changed me as much as anything was my visit home at the time I met you. So I sit here with my faithful briar and dream the old dreams over as it were, dreaming of the waltzes we waited together and of that last night before we parted, and you told me the good news you were going to live there, and I would find my friend waiting for me when I get home next summer.

I will be glad my friend will be waiting for me. I am not capable of friendship except for the very few, and, looking back over my life, I remember there were times when I doubted if I could feel a great friendship for anybody—especially girls. Here in the old place I do not believe in being half-fellow-well-met with every Tom, Dick, and Harry just because he happens to be a classmate any more than I do at home, where I have always been rarefied who I was seen with on account of the family, but also because my disposition ever since my boyhood has been to encourage real intimacy from the few.

From several letters from my mother, and one from Aunt Fanny I hear you are seeing a good deal of the family since I left. I hope sometimes you think of the member who is absent. I got a silver frame for your photograph in New York, and I keep it on my desk. It is the only girl's photograph I ever took the trouble to have framed, though, as I told you frankly, I have had any number of other girl's photographs yet all were only passing fancies, and oftentimes I have questioned in years past if I was capable of much friendliness toward the feminine sex, which I usually found shallow until our own friendship began. When I look at your photograph I say to myself, "At last, at last here is one that will not prove shallow."

Friend, this is from your friend,

G. A. M.

George's anticipations were not disappointed. When he came home in June his friend was awaiting him; at least she was so pleased to see him again that for a few minutes after their first encounter she was a little breathless and a great deal glowing, and quiet within.

Lucy and her father were living at the Amberson hotel, while Morgan got his small machine shops built in a western outskirt of the town; and George grumbled about the shabbiness and the old-fashioned look of the hotel, though it was "still the best in the place, of course." He remonstrated with his grandfather, declaring that the whole Amberson Estate would be getting "run down and out at heel if things weren't taken in hand pretty soon." He urged the general need of rebuilding, renovating, varnishing and lawsuits. But the Major, declining to hear him out, interrupted querulously, saying that he had enough to bother him without any advice from George; and retired to his library, going so far as to lock the door audibly.

"Second childhood!" George muttered, shaking his head; and he thought sadly that the Major had not long to live. However, this surprise depressed him for only a moment or so. Of course people couldn't be expected to live forever, and it would be a good thing to have someone in charge of the Estate who wouldn't let it get to looking so rusty that riffraff dared to make fun of it. For George had lately undergone the annoyance of calling upon the Morgans, in the rather stuffy red velours and gilt parlor of their apartment at the hotel, one evening when Mr. Frederick Kinney also was a caller, and Mr. Kinney had not been tactful. In fact, though he adopted a humorous tone of voice in expressing sympathy for people who, through the city's poverty in hotels, were obliged to stay at the Amberson, Mr. Kinney's intention was interpreted by the other visitor as not at all humorous, but, on the contrary, personal and offensive.

George rose abruptly, his face the color of wrath. "Good night, Miss

Good Night, Miss Morgan."

Morgan. Good night, Mr. Morgan. I shall take pleasure in calling at some other time when a more courteous sort of people may be present."

"Look here!" the hot-headed Fred burst out. "Don't you try to make me out a boor, George Minafer! I wasn't thinking anything at you; I simply forgot all about your grandfather owning this old building. Don't you try to put me in the light of a boor! I won't—"

But George walked out in the very course of his vehement protest, and it was necessarily left unfinished.

Mr. Kinney remained only a few moments after George's departure; and as the door closed upon him the distressed Lucy turned to her father. She was plaintively surprised to find him in a condition of in moderate laughter.

"It brings things back so!" he managed to explain. "This very Fred Kinney's father and young George's father, Wilbur Minafer, used to do just such things when they were at that age—and, for that matter, so did George Amberson and I, and all the rest of us!" And in spite of his exhaustion, he began to imitate: "Don't you try to put me in the light of a boor! I shall take pleasure in calling at some time when a more courteous sort of people—!" He was unable to go on.

"Papa, I think they were shocking. Weren't they awful?"

"Just—just boys!" he moaned, wiping his eyes.

But Lucy could not smile at all; she was beginning to look indignant. "I can forgive that poor Fred Kinney," she said. "He's just blundering—but George—oh, George behaved outrageously!"

She came and sat upon the arm of his chair. "Papa, why should George behave like that?"

"He's sensitive."

"Rather! But why is he? He does anything he likes to, without any regard for what people think. Then why should he mind so furiously when such friendliness toward the feminine sex, which I usually found shallow until our own friendship began. When I look at your photograph I say to myself, 'At last, at last here is one that will not prove shallow!'"

George patted her hand. "That's one of the greatest puzzles of human vanity, dear; and I don't pretend to know the answer. In all my life the most arrogant people that I've known have been the most sensitive. The people who have done the most in contempt of other people's opinion, and who consider themselves the highest above it have been the most furious if it went against them. Arrogant and domineering people can't stand the least, lightest, faintest breath of criticism. It just kills them."

"Papa, do you think George is terribly arrogant and domineering?"

"Oh, he's still only a boy," said Eugene consolingly. "There's plenty of fine stuff in him—can't help but be, because he's Isabel Amberson's son."

Lucy stroked his hair, which was still almost as dark as her own. "You liked her pretty well once, I guess, Papa."

"I do still," he said quietly.

"She's lovely—lovely! Papa—" she paused, then continued—"I wonder sometimes—"

"What?"

"I wonder just how she happened to marry Mr. Minafer."

"Oh, Minafer's all right," said Eugene. "He's a quiet sort of man, but he's a good man and a kind man. He always was, and those things count."

"I don't think I should have called George bad tempered," Lucy said thoughtfully. "No. I don't think he is."

"Only when he's cross about something?" Lucy suggested, with a semblance of sympathetic gravity.

"Yes," she said brightly, not perceiving that his intention was humorous. "All the rest of the time he's really very amiable. Of course he's much more a perfect child the whole time than he realizes! He certainly behaved awfully tonight!" She jumped up, her indignation returning. "He did, indeed, and it won't do to encourage him in it. I think he'll find pretty cool—for a week or so!"

Whereupon her father suffered a renewal of his attack of uproarious laughter.

In the matter of coolness George met Lucy upon her own predetermined ground; in fact, he was there first, and at their next encounter more formal than she did. Their estrangement lasted three weeks, and then disappeared without any preliminary treaty: he had worn it out and they forgot it.

The Major had taken great fancy to her, insisting upon her presence and her father's at the Amberson family dinner at the Mansion every Sunday evening. She knew how to flirt with old people, he said, as she sat next him at the table on one of these Sunday occasions; and he had always liked her father, even when Eugene was a "terror" long ago. "Oh, yes, he was!" the Major laughed when she remonstrated. "He came up here with my son George and some others for a serenade one night, and Eugene stepped into a bass fiddle, and the poor musicians just gave up! That serenade was just before Isabel was married—and don't you fret, Miss Lucy: your father remembers it well enough!" The old gentleman burst into laughter, and shook his finger at Eugene across the table. "The fact is," the Major went on hilariously, "I believe if Eugene hadn't broken that bass fiddle and given himself away Isabel would never have taken Wilbur! I shouldn't be surprised if that was about all the reason that Wilbur got her! What do you think, Wilbur?"

"I shouldn't be surprised," said Wilbur placidly. "If your notion is right I'm glad Gene broke the fiddle. He was giving me a hard run!"

The Major always drank three glasses of champagne at his Sunday dinner, and he was finishing the third. "What do you say about it, Isabel? By Jove!" he cried, pounding the table, "she's blushing!"

Eugene was as pink as Isabel, but he laughed without any sign of embarrassment other than his heightened color. "There's another important thing—that is, for me," he said. "It's the only thing that makes me forgive that bass viol for getting in my way. What is it?" the Major asked.

"Lucy," said Morgan gently. Isabel gave him a quick glance, al warm approval, and there was a murmur of friendliness round the table.

Summer glided by evenly and quickly enough, for the most part, and at the end seemed to fly. On the last night before George went back to a Junior his mother asked him confidently if it had not been a happy summer.

He hadn't thought about it, he answered. "Oh, I suppose so. Why?"

"I just thought it would be nice to hear you say so," she said, smiling. "It's seemed to me that it must have been a happy summer for you—a summer of roses and wine!" without the wine, perhaps. "Gather ye rose while ye may"—or was it primroses. Time does really fly, or perhaps it like the sky—and smoke!"

George was puzzled. "It strikes me you're getting mixed. I don't see much resemblance between time and the sky, or between things and smoke wreaths; but I do see one reason you like Lucy Morgan so much. She thinks that same kind of wistful moonway sometimes—I don't mean to say I mind it in either of you because I rather like to listen to it and you've got a very good voice mother. It's nice to listen to, no matter how much smoke and sky, and so on, you talk. So's Lucy's, for that matter; and I see why you're confident. She talks that way to her father, too; and he's right there with the same kind of guff. Well, it's alright with me! I've got plenty to think about when people drool along!"

She pressed his hand to her cheek and a tear made a tiny warm streak across one of his knuckles.

"For heaven's sake!" he said. "What's the matter? Isn't everything all right?"

"You're going away! I never can bear to see you go—that's the most of it. I'm a little bothered about you, father, too."

"Why?"

"It seems to me he looks so bad Everybody thinks so."

"What nonsense!" George laughed. "He's been looking that way all summer. He isn't much different from the way he's looked all his life, the way I can see. What's the matter with him?"

"He never talks much about his business to me, but I think he's been worrying about some investments he made last year. I think his worry has affected his health."

"What investments?" George demanded. "He hasn't gone into Mr. Morgan's automobile concern, has he?"

"No," Isabel smiled. "The automobile concern is all Eugene's, and it's so small I understand it's taken hardly anything. Now; your father has always prided himself on making only the most absolutely safe investments, but two or three years ago he and your Uncle George both put a great deal—pretty much everything they could get together, I think—into the stock of rolling mills some friends of theirs owned, and I'm afraid the mills haven't been doing well."

"What of that? Father needn't worry. You and I can take care of him the rest of his life on what grandfather—"

"Of course," she agreed. "But your father's always lived so for his business and taken such pride in his sound investments; it's a passion with him. I—"

"Pshaw! He needn't worry! You tell him we'll look after him." He kissed her. "Good night; I'm going to tell Lucy goodby. Don't sit up for me."

"Yes, I will," she laughed. "You won't be very late."

"Well—it's my last night."

"But I know Lucy, and she knows I want to see you too, your last night."

Five Miles South of Hopkinsville, On The Bradshaw Pike

THE BIGGEST SALE OF ITS KIND EVER UNDERTAKEN IN CHRISTIAN CO.
NEVER BEFORE was There better PROPERTY offered in an AUCTION SALE

THE 300 ACRE FARM OF IRA C. RHEA

Situated five miles from Hopkinsville on the Bradshaw Pike. One of the best pikes in Christian County.

The farm is located within one-half mile of splendid school, church and railroad station:

300 acres of fine level farming land to be divided into five parcels and sold at the "High Dollar."

TRACT NO. 1.—The first tract is known as the Home Tract, consisting of 100 acres. We do not think there is 100 acres of land for sale that is improved in Christian county better than this tract.

A HOME WITH EVERY CONVENIENCE—Electric lights, bath, furnace, and a nice modern, up-to-date 9-room cottage, situated in a beautiful oak lawn. With servants' house, meat house, poultry house and concrete walks to all of them. Splendid orchard, peaches, apples, strawberries, raspberries, fine asparagus bed. STOCK BARN—The drive is metal from the barn to the pike; has electric lights; running water in every stall, granary, new platform wagon scales.

Large 20 acres Tobacco Barn. Windmill. All buildings painted and in first class shape. All fences and gates in good repair. Could there be anything else added to make it an ideal country home? You may look the country over and in our judgment you would not find one better.

TRACT NO. 2.—Then we will sell about 60 acres of fine land fronting Tom Garnett's land. 18 acres of fine timber is on this tract. The timber alone would probably be worth $200 to $250 per acre and every foot of this land is good.

TRACT NO. 3.—Then we will offer Tract No. 3 fronting on Casky road and containing about 40 acres. Splendid tobacco barn; newly painted. Holds about 15 acres of tobacco. A barn that would cost about $1,000 to build today. A good small house on this tract and good land.

TRACT NO. 4.—About 50 acres lying on the north side of Bradshaw pike. This piece of land has a very good tenant house on it. Long frontage on the pike. A good piece of land.

TRACT NO. 5.—Will be just across the pike and contains something like 50 acres, lying between Mr. Garnett's land and the pike.

We shall offer this land separately and then as a whole. The way it brings the most is the way it will be sold.

TERMS—One half cash and balance in one, two or three years. A lien retained in deed to secure the deferred payments.

THE 65-ACRE TICHENOR FARM

On above date at 3 p.m. on the premises two (2) miles from Hopkinsville, south on the Dixie Bee Line, we shall sell at Public Outery what is known as the Tichenor Farm.

65 acres to be sold as a sub-division.

15 acres together with a nice new cottage, beautiful lawn, tenant house, tobacco barn, etc.

Then we shall sell the balance in 10 tracts of 5 acres each, each having a broad frontage on the Dixie Bee Line, or Nashville Pike.

Party purchasing one will have the privilege of taking the one next to it at the same price.

Now this is a splendid location. Close enough to live out there and to work in town.

TERMS—One-third cash; balance in one, two or three years.

NINTH ST. BUSINESS PROPERTY

At 5 p.m. on above date we shall sell at Public Outery, on Ninth Street, in the city of Hopkinsville, next to L. & N. depot, the brick building fronting 43 feet on Ninth Street, running back full length of square to Tenth Street, and being same building as now occupied as a livery stable.

This would make a splendid garage, wholesale grocery or Mercantile House of any kind. I believe there are as many people passing in front of this property as any property in Hopkinsville.

This building at very little cost could be converted into a Mercantile House. And remember Ninth Street property is THE property.

TERMS—One-third cash; balance one, two or three years.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK BUILDING PEMPROKE, KY.

On the same date at 5:30, next door to the L. & N. depot, in Hopkinsville, we will sell to the highest bidder, what is known as the Farmers & Merchants Bank building, located on Main street at Pembroke, Ky.

This is a new building and is the best building in the town of Pembroke. It is now bringing an income of over $1500 per annum. The building is not a building in Hopkinsville that is better finished or better built than this building at Pembroke. This building would cost $25,000 to $30,000 to build today, and it is all in good repair and good tenants.

MEN, if you want an investment, it seems to me that you would be interested in this proposition.

TERMS—One-third cash; balance in one, two or three years.

DON'T FORGET THE DAY AND THE DATE WEDNESDAY AUGUST 20, 1919

Sale will begin promptly at 1:30 o'clock; five miles from Hopkinsville on the Bradshaw pike. Thence from there to the Tichenor Farm, two miles from Hopkinsville on the Dixie Bee Line at 3 P.M. Thence from there to the L. & N. depot at Hopkinsville, 5 P.M. we will wind up the sale.

INDIAN SQUAW WISDOM

Pilchuck Indians Lay Great Store On Utterances of Their Prophetess Who Saves for the "Great Cold."

Out among the Pilchuck Indians in Washington, the thrifit habit has taken hold like a forest fire and the habits of wastefulness which are a tradition with the American Indian are rapidly being set aside for habits of thrifit.

One of the most attractive boosters for thrifit among this tribe is Pilchuck Julia, an aged squaw, who is looked upon by her people as a seeress of great wisdom. When Julia says "save," her worshipful followers know it is "good medieine," and forthwith move their moecasins to the local War Savings Stamps headquarters to buy Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

Recently Fred W. Graham, State director of the National Thrift Campaign, journeyed to the Pilchuck's reservation and decorated Julie with the "Order of the Thrifty." When the director pinned a gaudy War Savings Stamp button on the aged seeress' coat, she smiled and said:

"Heap big snows are coming, Better save for the Great Cold."

And the braves and squaws who had assembled to witness the ceremony of decorating Julie nodded their heads solemnly in assent.

AUTOS WANTED.

The following members of Ferrell's boys, who are owners of automobiles, requested by the Transportation Committee to be on hand promptly each with his car, to assist in carrying the "Boys" out to Lake Tandy.

The statement further said that it is unfair to hold up one line of merchandise as a "horrible example," when in reality the profit is not more than 6 per cent.

Held To Grand Jury.

E. C. Cherry was held to the grand jury under a $200 bond on a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property. Cherry runs a grocery store on North Virginia St. and it is charged that he bought chickens from some negro boys, which he knew had been stolen. He denies that he is guilty of any such action.

Swinging flower baskets, window boxes that will look beautiful for months, at METCALFE'S.

LEAF TOBACCO WAREHOUSE PLANNED FOR PROVIDENCE

Madisonville, Ky., Aug. 9.—Frank Wake, of this city, John Hill and Dave Barnhill of near Providence will let the contract at an early date for the erection of a modern tobacco warehouse near Providence and will be ready for business by early fall. The warehouse will be opened to take care of tobacco crops in Webster and adjoining counties, much of this in the past being taken to Henderson, which is quite a distance. Mr. Wake owns the Wake warehouse in Madisonville, one of the most modern loose leaf floors in the state.

APPOINTMENT OF CENSUS SUPERVISOR.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 12.—The Secretary of Commerce, upon the recommendation of the Director of the Census, has appointed A. S. Ratliff, of Pikeville, Pike county, as supervisor of Census for the Tenth district of Kentucky, comprising the counties of Floyd, Jackson, Johnson, Knott, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Owsley, Perry and Pike.

The appointments for the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth and Eleventh districts have already been announced, and those for the First and Seventh districts will be announced at an early date.

SAYS FALL SHOES TO BE FROM $8 TO $12

Philadelphia.—Charges that shoe retailers are profiteers as made in a report of the Federal Trade Commission were denied today in a statement by A. H. Geuting, president of the National Shoe Retailers' Association. The bulk of next fall's shoes will be sold at $8 to $12 a pair instead of higher prices, he said.

The statement further said that it is unfair to hold up one line of merchandise as a "horrible example," when in reality the profit is not more than 6 per cent.

Charles G. Franklin has been appointed City Judge to fill out the unexpired term of the late W. C. Hopewell. There were eight applicants for the place. John Ashby, chief of police, has resigned and his successor is to be named at the next meeting of the council.

Family Reunion.

The fifteenth annual reunion of the Dickinson family was held on the last day of July at the home of Jesse A. Dickinson, at Trenton.

Great preparations had been made and a fine old-fashioned barbecue was served. After the guests had finished their dinner, the meeting was called to order by W. S. Dickson, the President. W. S. Waller, the Secretary, read the minutes of the meeting. The roll was called and 97 of the 130 enrolled answered to their names. In the last fifteen years there have been eleven deaths, 20 marriages and forty births. The 1920 meeting will be held at the home of Dalton Dickinson.

The value of all staples has always soared immediately following a war, but as business conditions readjust themselves prices will gradually become normal again.

Thus the purchaser of Savings Stamps may reasonably expect a much greater return than the interest allows, at the time of maturity.

TO WIPE OUT ILLITERACY

Governor Proclaims Educational Week Beginning Aug. 25 All Over State.

Kentucky is engaged in a great campaign to wipe out illiteracy, a campaign which is led by the teachers and supported by every right-thinking, patriotic citizen of the State. While reducing our adult illiterates we must also see to it that our children are kept in school and thus prevent illiteracy from coming on in the future. The noble teachers who are striving to accomplish these important things for our state are doing a work so constructive, so heroic and so commendable that all must see the justice in taking immediate steps toward increasing the salaries of these teachers. Better salaries are due them and better salaries they must have if we hold them in the ranks and keep our schools on a high plane of efficiency.

The Kentucky Illiteracy Commission and the County School Superintendents of Kentucky have blended these three paramount educational problems and will present them for the consideration of the whole people of Kentucky during the week of August 25-30. During this week a state-wide Educational Campaign will be waged and these problems will be carried by earnest and patriotic speakers to the people of every county and every school district in the state. Such a campaign will cause our people to stop and consider the illiterate in his darkness and his bondage, to consider the sin of keeping a child out of school and the unfitness of paying the teachers of this Commonwealth less than a living wage as they have never reflected upon these things before. It will not only cause citizens of Kentucky to think and reflect over the seriousness of these problems but will be followed, I believe, by prompt and decided action on the three things which I desire to reiterate:

• Wiping out illiteracy.
• Increasing day school attendance.
• Bettering teachers' salaries.

I, therefore, proclaim the week of August 25-30 as Educational week in Kentucky and I call upon all school officials, every teacher and every citizen to devote their whole time during this period toward arousing a burning interest in these subjects among the people of their localities. I recommend that all gatherings or occasions in conflict with this statewide educational campaign be postponed and that all who are devoted to other interests abandon them for the time that such an impetus may be given to these great educational problems as will lead to their wise and speedy solution.

THE 1919 DOLLAR IN 1924.

Here's a thought that may not have occurred to you in selling Savings Stamps: Dollars saved now will be worth half again as much in five years. This is the rather startling statement of experts in economics who are studying the present financial condition of the country. What is meant is that the buying power of a dollar will be increased by 50 per cent in that space of time.

At present, conditions are far from normal, owing to the world-wide effects of the war, but all authorities agree that these abnormal conditions will gradually disappear and that the dollar of 1924 will go much further as a purchasing medium, than the dollars spent today.

The value of all staples has always soared immediately following a war, but as business conditions readjust themselves prices will gradually become normal again.

Thus the purchaser of Savings Stamps may reasonably expect a much greater return than the interest allows, at the time of maturity.

U. S. Leads In Hogs

The United States has produced an enormous amount of meat in the past years. The country owns about one-seventh of all the cattle in the world, but it is in growing and fattening hogs that the U. S. excels all other countries. About one-third of the 180,000,000 swine on the globe are right here in the States. This year the United States has more hogs than her ten nearest competitors combined.

Thirty-two farmers, charged with selling foodstuffs at abnormal prices and at short measure, were arrested at the Pittsburg markets in a drive against profiteering.

McElroy was 49 years of age and was in charge of the Dr. M. E. Croft farm. He had all his plans made to marry Sunday but the objection of his children to the wedding was the cause of his hanging himself.

NARROW ESCAPE OF MISS M. E. LINDSAY, AT COLLEGE

While plumbers were handling some heavy pipes on the third floor of Bethel College yesterday, one of them dropped a piece weighing 75 pounds that crashed endways thru a hole in the floor and the plastering beneath, directly over a chair in which Miss M. E. Lindsay, Dean of the College, was sitting at his desk. The falling plastering gave a second's warning and Miss Lindsay sprang aside just as the iron struck the chair in which she had been sitting. The falling debris put the typewriter out of commission, though it was not struck. Miss Lindsay's escape was almost miraculous, but she seemed but little excited over the experience.

"Nobody is responsible for the rising cost of the common necessities of life, but when great numbers of people are disappointed and discontented somebody is always held to be responsible. The most thoughtful students of history have held that all the great crises and upheavals of society have been due to economic causes, to direct economic pressure upon the people, rather than to logical reasoning or intellectual leadership. Twice in my own time I have seen the monetary question and standard value upset in this country, because times were hard; once by the greenback party and once by the free silver party. In both of these instances the farmers were the chief complainants, and the grievance was that prices were too low; now it is the wage earning class and the grievance is that prices are too high."

"The arguments for greenbacks and free silver were all washed away in the periods of prosperity which followed, but the same type of agitator is always on hand—just as ready to argue from high prices as low prices, and always finding the most effective appeal in the play upon class suspicion and class prejudice. The solution of our problem lies in reducing our credit inflation out of savings and getting back to a rational economic basis."

TRUTH ABOUT BURNED PLANES

Republican Charges Refuted and Facts Made Public In Investigation by House Committee.

Washington, D. C. Aug. 12.—Complete refutation of statements made before House sub-committee investigating war expenditures that serviceable and valuable airplanes have been wantonly destroyed by the American Expeditionary Force is made in a statement by Col. M. M. Patrick, U. S. Engineers and late Major General and Chief of Air Service, A. E. F.

Statements that a "million dollars' worth" of such planes were destroyed have been made before the sub-committee investigating war expenditures overseas, of which Representative Royal C. Johnson, Republican, of South Dakota is chairman. At a session of that committee, Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, who came to public attention by his investigation of aircraft production in America which resulted in the investigation of Judge Hughes, filed several photographs of parts of planes purported to have been burned. Contrary to the opinion of experts in the army air service, Mr. Borglum made the unqualified statement to the committee that it was impossible to tell from the photographs whether a plane or its parts were actually serviceable and safe for flyers.

Denying that a single part of a plane from which the Government could derive a penny of value either by sale or use had been destroyed General Patrick prepared and filed with Representative Flood, a member of the Johnson committee, a statement in which he said:

"When hostilities ceased, there were in possession of the American air service planes of varying types and all stages of repair, from new and unused planes to those which were complete wrecks. The question of their disposition was given full study."

"I at once gave orders to return to the United States all DH-4 planes and all Liberty engines which were serviceable."

"About the disposition of the remainder*****I appointed boards of survey, each composed of officers of ability, who were conscientious and careful. Those orders were to inspect every plane in our possession and to recommend to me what should be done with each one."

General Patrick's statement then shows that the plane and material fell into four classes. Those which had been crashed, most of them in training service or in battle, and were beyond repair; those used in the training schools and which were worn out from wear and tear; others which had deteriorated in storage, planes being very delicate and deteriorating very rapidly, and others which were useable, but practically obsolete and which would have been discarded very soon even if the war had gone on, for more modern machines.

"After having examined each of these planes, "General Patrick's statement continues, "the Boards of Survey arranged them in classes and recommended, in general, that they be offered for sale, and if unsalable, that they be salvaged. By 'salvaged' is meant the taking off of all valuable parts, such as motors, tires, instruments and the like, which can be used to repair other planes, or which have a money value."***

"I approved the recommendations of these boards. I inquired of the French Government and was told that they would not purchase any of this material. There was no market for this material. It was, therefore, salvaged as outlined above. Some of the wooden fragments, which could not be used by us nor sold, was destroyed.

"I do not know of my knowledge that a single useable plane was destroyed***but I am well satisfied that no plane was destroyed which could be disposed of in France, or which would have brought as much money in the United States as it would cost to get it here."

"The matter of shipping any of this material to the United States was fully considered. I had estimates made of the cost of storage, of packing and transportation and I am quite convinced, in the cases of all the planes which were salvaged, that this would have been decided uneconomical.****"

"The salvaging of this material was part of the inevitable waste of war but the American Air Service in France did everything possible to reduce this waste to the minimum. It is apparent that it was necessary to decide whether it would pay to ship material to the United States, and after careful study and in the exercise of judgment, it was decided that this would be a further waste of Government money. Attention may be called to the fact that the packing of a single DH-4 plane in the United States to shipment to France in round numbers about $280. Estimates made in France showed that it would cost not less than about $500 to pack up a plane without the engines, that prior to packing it there would be a considerable expense while the planes were in storage, in order to keep them in condition, that there would be a cost of rail transportation and the cost of ocean transportation to the United States, with further freight charges and charges for handling after the packages arrived here. Some of the cases which contained the planes which were actually shipped to the United States occupy a space of not less than 1,000 cubic feet. The size of this task and its costliness can be judged from these facts."

KILLED IN FIST FIGHT

Paul Cox Breaks Man's Neck With a Blow of His Fist in Fight
At Fredonia.

Raymond Threlkeld was killed by Paul Cox at Fredonia Thursday by a blow of his fist. Cox and his mother conduct a store at Fredonia and it is alleged that Threlkeld came into the store to buy a bottle of coca cola and that Mrs. Cox called his attention to his having gotten a drink the previous day for which he had not paid. He called Mrs. Cox a liar, whereupon young Cox invited him outside. In the fight which followed Cox struck him a terrific blow on the point of the chin and his neck was broken. At first it was thought that he was only knocked out, but when he failed to revive, a doctor was called and the young man taken to the hospital in Evansville where it was found that his neck was broken.

Young Cox is a nephew of Harry V. McChesney formerly secretary of State.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Holstein Breeders' Association was held at Coldstream farm, near Lexington, August 5th. A large crowd attended this out-of-door affair where the $100,000 herd bull display made by the club girls, was the center of attraction. The speakers were D. D. World Trade Club Offers Prize For Best Name for "Brit-Ams."

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Can you create the one word which will best denote the United States and all parts of Britannia? If so you will be paid at the rate of $1,000 a word. The World Trade Club of San Francisco has offered $1,000 to the person who suggests the word which, in the judgment of the club's Metric Campaign Committee, is best adapted to world-wide use.

The competition is open to all mankind. The money will be paid to the winner at noon on 15 May, 1920, by a committee appointed by President W. H. Hammer of the World Trade Club.

"Brit-Am," "Ambrilia," "Ambristica," "Br-Am," "Sam-Bull" are some words thus far suggested. New names are constantly coming. The World Trade Club is offering this award because it is carrying on its present campaign for the adoption of metric units by all English speaking people—The United States, the British Isles, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, United South Africa and so on—it was hampered by the lack of a single short word which would express all these.

The metric units of weight and measure are now used by all the world except "Brit-Am" or Ambristica" or "Sam-Bull."

Exhibit Will Be Bigger.

Last year visitors to the State Fair were pleased and impressed with the exhibit of the College of Agriculture in the Grand Stand building. The exhibit this autumn will be bigger and better in every way. Live stock, dairying, soils and farm management will all have impressive displays.

Lady Walnut Hill, the Kentucky hen that holds the world's record for non-stop laying, will be one of the good wife who enjoys the canning fair where the $100,000 herd bull display made by the club girls, will meet this wonderful hen.

Do You Stand the Test?
A manufacturer of a certain food product advertises that his goods will stand the test of hot weather because they are made of the right material.

He means that his goods are as stable for use in hot weather as in more moderate temperatures—that hot weather does not affect them or break them down. If this were not true his product would not have as wide a sale because people do not buy products which cannot stand weather tests.

Do you slump in the summer or are you made of the right material which stands all the tests?

If you have quit saving because it is hot weather, you are not made of the right material.

War Savings and Thrift Stamps are available all the year around. If you have been buying them regardless of hot weather and vacation time next year your vacation will be all the better because you'll have something substantial to enjoy it on.

Mr. R. S. Gary, one of the oldest and most prominent farmers of the county, died suddenly at his home near Church Hill Saturday morning.
